(Amit is from India. He is studying at a Japanese high school. Koji is his classmate. They are playing chess.)

Koji : I give up! You're so strong!

Amit : Not really. You're a good player.

Koji : Thanks, but you're much stronger than me.

How did you become so strong?

Amit : Chess is very popular in my country. I have played it since I was young.

Koji : Have you? I've just started playing chess. My father taught me how to play it.

Amit : I want to be the world chess champion in the future! The origin of chess goes back to India, I believe. I'm very proud of it.

Koji : Oh, I didn't know that. Please teach me how to be a better player.

Amit : Sure. Actually, I play chess on my computer every day.

Koji : Really? I know some chess computers are stronger than human players. Can you win?

Amit : It's not difficult for me to win against my computer. But the best chess computer in the world can win against even the world chess champion.

Koji : Computers are great! I hear more and more jobs will be done by computers in the future. I'm afraid it'll be difficult to get a job when we become adults.

Amit : Do you really think so?

Koji : I'm not sure, but I think it's possible. I heard another interesting story. Two years ago, a Japanese woman was told that she had a cancer. Doctors gave her medicine, but she became worse. So they decided to use a special computer. In only ten minutes, the computer found out that she had a different type of cancer. They gave her a different medicine and she got well. She was saved by the computer.

Amit : Oh, that's wonderful! It's true that such computers are important these days, but I think we need human doctors, too. I was in a hospital once. At that time, the doctors and nurses took good care of me. I was very happy.

Koji : I see. Computers are good, but they can't do everything. We should be careful when we use them. We must be smarter than them.

Amit : That's right. Well, do you want to play chess with me again?

Koji : I want to, but give me time. I'll practice on my computer to become a better player.

Amit : OK. I hope you'll become a much better player. Playing with humans is more interesting than playing with computers. I'll wait!
