Earnings from School Festival Food Stands

Food	Class	Day 1 Earnings (yen)	Day 2 Earnings (yen)	Total (yen)
Frankfurter sausages	(A)	12,500	23,600	36,100
Fried noodles	(B)	12,200	17,500	29,700
Grilled chicken	2-3	11,800	10,080	21,880
Potatoes with butter	2-6	11,500	18,300	29,800
Ramen	(C)	8,200	15,700	23,900

Every year, students in second-year classes at Minami High School are in charge of selling food at their fall festival. Since the school only allows a total of five food stands, not every class is able to have one. In 2013, there were eight second-year classes, and all of them wanted to run a food stand. The five lucky ones were chosen by lottery.

Each of those five classes decided what food to sell. Classes 2-1, 2-3, and 2-7 all wanted to sell the same dish, fried noodles, so they had to have another lottery. This time, Class 2-7 was chosen to sell fried noodles. The other classes then all decided to offer different items: Frankfurter sausages, grilled chicken, potatoes with butter, and ramen. All five classes also decided to serve drinks along with the food. Classes 2-2, 2-5, and 2-8 decided to show movies, have a ghost maze, and run a ring toss game, respectively.

On the first day of the festival, most of the classes earned approximately the same amount of money from selling the food. Only Class 2-4 earned less, because the ramen noodles they ordered didn't arrive on time. At the end of the first day, the classes with food stands were satisfied with their earnings, but they hoped to do better the next day, because they planned to give all their profits to poor children in other countries.

On the second day of the festival, huge differences in earnings appeared. The class selling Frankfurter sausages earned much more than the other classes. This was because they decided to reduce the price of their sausages. When they did so, the line in front of their stand began to grow, and for the rest of the day, many people waited to buy the cheaper sausages. Since they had a large hot plate, they were able to cook many sausages at the same time. In contrast, Class 2-3 was unable to increase their sales, because they had only one small grill and could not prepare their food fast enough.

Cathy sighed as she watched the cherry blossom petals fall from a nearby tree. She was sitting on a bench in a park not far from her school. It was Monday, and Cathy already felt tired. Ever since she entered high school the year before, she had made it a habit to visit the park on her way home from school. It was a peaceful place. She could think about anything she wanted. That day, she had stayed there longer than usual. She couldn't make up her mind whether to go to a local college or one in a foreign country. Studying abroad had always been one of her dreams, but she was worried about living alone, far away from her family. Cathy watched the petals falling slowly from the trees and for a while, it made her feel sleepy. She wished she could stay there forever, without worrying about her future.

Suddenly she heard a voice say, "Forever is a long time." Cathy was surprised. She looked around and saw a little boy sitting on the bench next to her. When had he come? She hadn't noticed. "What?" she asked. "Forever is a long time," the boy said again. Cathy was confused. She hadn't said anything out loud, had she? "What are you talking about?" she said. The boy explained, "I mean you shouldn't stay here for long." Then she asked, "Where are your parents? It's not good to be in a park alone." The boy said nothing and stared at her.

Cathy began to get irritated. Why was this little boy bothering her? But then he looked at her and spoke again. "Don't be afraid to try something new. Trust yourself." Cathy said in a loud voice, "I'm not afraid to start a new life. I have the courage to challenge myself!" As the little boy said something, he began to change. His body became smaller. He grew feathers and wings and changed into a small bird, a mockingbird. Cathy thought this was very strange, but before she could say anything, she felt something vibrating in her pocket.

Cathy quickly opened her eyes and looked around. She realized that she had been dreaming all along. She had fallen asleep on the bench in the park! What time was it? She took her cell phone out of her jacket pocket and saw that she had a text message from her mother. It said: "Cathy, where are you? I'm home and you're not here." Cathy jumped up from the bench and began running towards her house. She had slept so long that her mother had already returned home from work and was looking for her. As she slowed down and started to walk, she knew she was ready to tell her mother about her plans for the future.
