

23rd

OECD/Japan seminar

Theme OECD Teaching Compass – Teachers matter

The Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology, Japan(MEXT) and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) has jointly hosted the OECD/Japan Seminar (hereinafter referred to as the "Japan Seminar") since 1993, with the aim of promoting international cooperation in the field of education and contributing to the improvement of educational practice in Japan through introduction of OECD's education projects and exchanges of views with other member countries.

The 23rd Japan Seminar will focus on the Teaching Compass, which will indicate future vision of teachers and teaching competencies, teacher agency and teacher well-being which is currently being developed under the OECD "Future of Education and Skills 2030" (hereinafter referred to as the "E2030"). The 23rd Japan Seminar will be held in conjunction with 6th Global Forum on the Future of Education2030, to be held in Japan, for international co-creation of the Teaching Compass with various education stakeholders' discussion. This Seminar is organised back-to-back with the E2030 Global Forum meeting and, thus, participants will have the opportunity to access the latest global E2030's discussions on Teaching Compass.
